He d. between Feb. 27, 1713, and July 2, 1713, upon which latter day his widow Margaret Henly and his "eldest son" Elias Henly were appointed administrators. On April 6, 1716, the Judge of Probate ordered his estate divided into seven equal parts—which under the English law of inheritance shows that he had surviving six children. What were the names of those children?

His widow Margaret Henly m. (2) at Marblehead, 16 Oct. 1713, John Girdler, a fisherman, who lived in Marblehead from 1707 to 1723 or later. He mortgaged his property to his brother Robert Girdler of Marblehead, a "shoreman," 13 March 1721/2, and this was released unto his heirs 8 June 1734.

Elias Hendly, Senr. of Marblehead, mariner, with the consent of his wife Margaret for £40 deeded his son Elias Hendly, Jr. of Marblehead, fisherman, a dwelling house, barn and land they stand upon adjacent to my own land, 27 Feb. 1712/3. (Essex Deeds. 25:175).
